GRETA

THURNBERG

THE BRAVE CLIMATE ACTIVIST

Greta Thunberg, the brave climate activist who was born in 2003 back in Sweden.

Little Greta grew up to be kind to nature and learnt from her parents, not to waste water, food and always to turn off the lights.

One day at school, she watched a film about climate change and discovered human activity was causing planet earth to warm up. Her classmates were worried too, but once the film was over everyone forgot about it, everyone, except Greta.

Greta couldn't understand, why more people did not take climate change seriously? Why no one in power was doing anything to solve the terrible problem?

It is actually the people who are in power, who are responsible to look after young children, that they should have plentiful earth, isn't it?

Greta felt so hopeless about the future that she stopped talking. Doctors said that she had 'Selective Mutism' and Asperger's Syndrome, which meant she could only speak and pay attention to what was really important to her. But, this ended up being Greta's Superpower. It helped her to focus with single-minded determination on her dream - saving the planet.

Greta started by convincing her parents to stop eating meat and taking planes, but she knew, she would have to do more. One day instead of going to school, Greta decided to sit quietly in front of the Swedish Parliament with a sign that read 'School's strike for climate'. Every Friday, she turned up and each time, more and more students joined her. Word of Greta's protest spread and soon thousands of students around the world started skipping school to protest against climate change.

Governments were forced to take notice, and Greta crossed the ocean to speak in front of the world leaders. She asked them to stop making up
